Working in partnership

We continued to work in partnership with a range of public sector, private sector and third sector organisations on a local, regional and national basis to tackle some of the most complex issues facing our citizens and communities. These include:

- the Western Bay Health and Social Care Collaboration Programme that will be delivering new projects in our learning disabilities, mental health, community services and adoption services:
- Intensive Family Support Service (IFSS), a team of social workers and nurses that work intensively with families where there is substance misuse:
- a series of awareness raising events on welfare reforms for frontline workers in health, social care, housing, third sector and other agencies who provide support to vulnerable people;
- providing work placements, traineeships and apprenticeships through joint working with other organisations such as Job Centre Plus and Bridgend College.

Citizen feedback

Citizen feedback is vital for planning the improvement of our services. We provided a wide range of regular opportunities for service users to help us with feedback on our services, often through working with the third sector and other partner organisations, and also through our Citizens' Panel.

In the past year, we consulted on our Medium Term Financial Strategy, on our improvement priorities, and on specific services. Of the 732 responses:

- 62% said they were aware of the council's financial situation;
- 32% believed the Council could save money through reducing the number of councillors, workforce and/or employee benefits:
- 4% said citizens could reduce demand by taking more personal responsibility.

Our latest Citizens Panel Survey found that :

- 44% of citizens surveyed found the Council was good or very good at telling them about the services it provides and council related news:
- · 26% felt that they can influence decisions affecting their local area: and
- 63% said that their individual access requirements were met when contacting the council.

What did our regulators say

Each year the Auditor General reports on how well Welsh authorities plan to improve and deliver their services. Drawing on findings from other inspections/reviews such as the CSSIW (Care and Social Services Inspectorate for Wales) Annual Review Evaluation of Performance 2012-13, the Estyn inspection October 2012.and the Council's self-assessment of performance, the Annual Wales Audit Office Improvement Report was positive overall. It concluded that the Council was likely to make appropriate arrangements to improve further in 2014-15. The report did not make any statutory recommendations for the Council to consider, or specific proposals for improvement.
